

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to a method of inducing the body to produce an antibody against the region of the CCR5 receptor in wild type individuals, that is affected by the delta 32 deletion and vaccines for producing said antibody. The antibody is produced is by treating the individual using a vaccine consisting of a polypeptide and its derivatives.